

DAILY REPORT
Friday, 14th May 2008

Our last day started with speeches! Hanife Icten, our guest from Frankfurt Book Fair, talked about the Fair, its history, and their new website! Then, Anna from Italy added her experience of the Fair as a visitor.

Mr George Parikos, publisher and retired teacher made a speech about the School Books in Greece. We learned that books are given for free to students from the Elementary school until University! These books are given from the bookshops, and the Government pays the bookshops! Although the quality level of schoolbooks is low!

Elise, Stefi & Maria talked about ICYB's future...What we should do, how can we promote it better, about the Facebook group we have created etc.

Then came the colourful, inspiring, creative and amazing presentations of the group-works. 1 idea came up to 5 totally different solutions. Great! There is no winner, when everybody has so many great ideas about how can a bookstore be environmentally friendly! We wish all booksellers to come up with similar ideas!

After that we elected the fellow secretaries by the pool and voted for the Biby. The winner of this year is: The book thief by Marcus Zusak!

Certificates were given to each of us, signed by Maria and Stefi!! After a break that some used to jump into the pool, some to go to the beach and others just for a nap or to pack their belongings we met on the roof for a delicious Farewell-dinner. Today Maria's whole family joined us and we had a lot of fun, eating and drinking and by listening to songs and poems and by voting of the ICYB-Babis of the year.

Later this evening we went just few meters down the street to go to the Greek club "Alekos". An extraordinary location full of real, cool Babis, wearing sunglasses at night. We rocked the house and the last went to bed around 5.

Oh, what a night.... dancing under the stars...

Babis song by ... THE NETHERLANDS

His shirt is half open
His breast hair's curling wild
Sitting in the sun light
Checking out the tourist's wives

The phone is always ringing
His friends are always there
His testeron is running
Are there any girls out there?

Oh oh oh oh...

Till there's any chick that sleeps with him
Oh oh oh oh...
But when the morning comes
He falls out of love again

*Babis, all I want is babis
Easy! Sleazy! Smooth hair
And a golden necklace there*

He's living with his mommy
And drives a flashy car
He's whistling at the Ladies
Is before noon at the bar

He loves expensive brand marks
That doesn't fit his size
His "spekjes" are in charge now
But he thinks he is real nice

Oh oh oh oh...
Till there's any chick that sleeps with him
Oh oh oh oh...
But when the morning comes
He falls out of love again

*Babis, all I want is babis
Easy! Sleazy! Smooth hair
And a golden necklace there*
